Certificate Course on Navigating AMD and DNACPR Under the ADLST Ordinance

Advance Medical Directives (AMD) legislation represents a significant milestone in the advancement of end-of-life care in Hong Kong. The Legislative Council of Hong Kong enacted the Advance Decision on Life-Sustaining Treatment (ADLST) Ordinance. Currently, the ordinance is undergoing a 18-month preparation period for medical institutions, relevant departments, and organizations to update their protocols, records, and systems, as well as provide training to their frontline staff. This course is designed to equip healthcare professionals with the necessary knowledge and skills to navigate AMD and do-not-attempt cardiopulmonary resuscitation (DNACPR) under the ADLST ordinance. The course will share the guiding principles and best practices with illustrations by case scenarios.

Speakers:

Dr. HO Chun Wing

Chairman, Hong Kong Society of Palliative Medicine

Dr. Ho, a Fellow in Palliative Medicine and Internal Medicine, graduated from CUHK in year 2004. He has held the position of Chairman of the Hong Kong Society of Palliative Medicine since 2023. He serves as an Associate Consultant in the Palliative Care Unit of Ruttonjee Hospital. Dr. Ho has a special interest in the topics of Advance Medical Directives (AMD) and Advance Care Planning (ACP), and he has actively contributed through teaching engagements in various settings, including workplaces, public talks, local and international conferences. Furthermore, he has served as a moderator and the organizing committee member for a number of conferences involving AMD-related topics, particularly following the legislation of the ADLST Ordinance.

Dr. POON Yin

Vice Chairman, Ethics and Policy Subcommittee, Hong Kong Society of Palliative Medicine

Dr. Poon is a Palliative Medicine Specialist and Associate Consultant at Caritas Medical Centre. She graduated from CUHK and is a Fellow in Palliative Medicine and Internal Medicine. As an ADLST Ordinance Hospital Subject Officer, she conducts DNACPR audits and has a special interest in medical ethics and end-of-life care, with teaching and public talks on these topics.
